

The Constructionarium program invites construction science college students from across the globe to the United Kingdom to gain hands-on experience in the British construction industry. Student groups plan, schedule, budget, and manage small-scale replicas of iconic infrastructure from around the world.